Maintainable Project Structure and Feature Slices

Generated from local repository on 2026-07-19

Goal

This PDF shows how to update the code structure so the project becomes easier to maintain, read, test, and grow. The recommended direction is feature-sliced architecture: app shell code stays in one place, shared primitives stay small, and every business capability owns its pages, hooks, API calls, components, schemas, and tests.

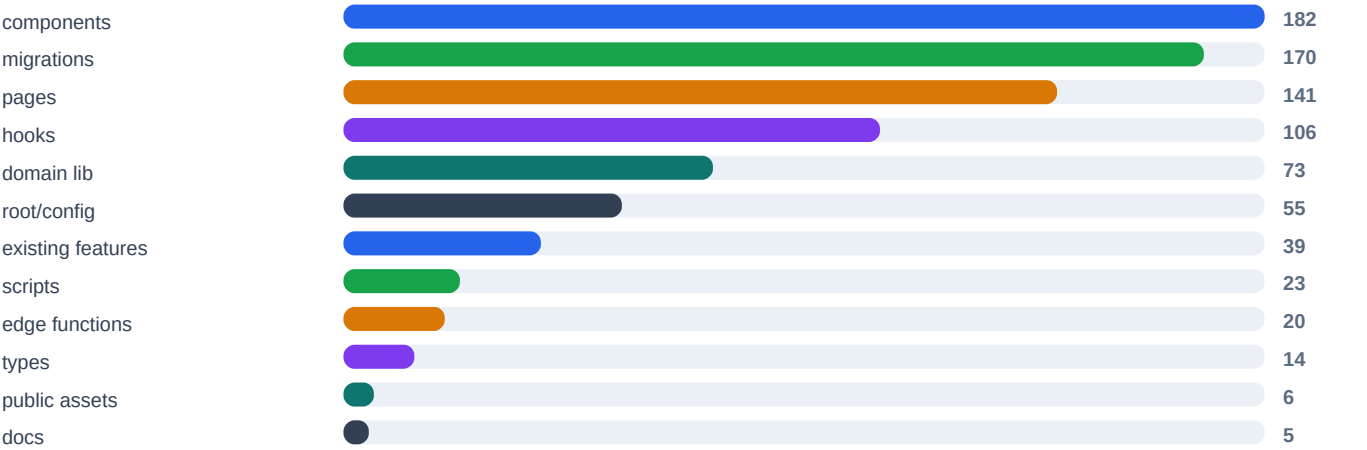

Current Structure Diagnosis

The project already has a strong product surface, but the code is split by role pages and global folders. That makes feature changes harder because one workflow can live across pages, hooks, lib modules, components, migrations, and edge functions.

Files by Current Layer

Current pattern	What it causes	Clean-code direction
Role-first pages	Admin, parent, and teacher flows for the same feature are far apart.	Move related role pages into the same feature slice under pages/.
Global hooks folder	Hard to know which feature owns a query or mutation.	Move feature-specific hooks beside the feature; keep only generic hooks in shared/hooks.
Global lib folder	Business logic and generic utilities are mixed.	Move domain logic to feature/api or feature/lib; keep only generic helpers in shared/lib.
Manual DB types	Supabase table drift creates many never-row TypeScript errors.	Generate database types and put them under src/backend/supabase.
Large route file	Router imports every page and becomes a coordination hotspot.	Keep route definitions in src/app/router and import feature route modules.

Target Project Structure

This is the structure to migrate toward. It is still React/Vite/Supabase, but ownership becomes clear because each feature owns its own UI, hooks, API calls, schemas, and tests.

src/
  app/
    router/AppRouter.tsx
      routes.admin.tsx
      routes.parent.tsx
      routes.teacher.tsx
      routes.xo-admin.tsx
    providers/
      AppProviders.tsx
      AuthProvider.tsx
      DatabaseConnectionGate.tsx
    layouts/
      RootLayout.tsx
      AdminLayout.tsx
      ParentLayout.tsx
      TeacherLayout.tsx
      XoAdminLayout.tsx
  features/
    attendance/
    events-permissions/
    invoices-payments/
    staff-onboarding/
    child-enrollment/
  shared/ui/components/
    hooks/lib/
    types/backend/
    supabase/
      client.ts

Feature Module Anatomy

Folder/file	Purpose	Rule
pages/	Route-level screens for all roles that use this feature.	Pages compose; they should not contain large data or formatting logic.
components/	Feature-specific UI pieces.	Reusable only inside the feature unless promoted to shared/components.
hooks/	React Query hooks and UI state hooks.	Name by useFeatureThing; no raw Supabase calls in pages.
api/	Supabase reads/writes and edge-function calls.	Typed inputs/outputs; one module per backend capability.
schemas/	Zod schemas and form validation.	Keep form defaults and resolver types beside schemas.
types.ts	Feature domain types.	Prefer generated DB types plus small view models.
index.ts	Public exports for this feature.	Avoid deep imports from other features.
__tests__/	Unit, hook, or route smoke tests.	Test high-risk flows and permission gates.

Migration Rules

Move gradually. Do not refactor the entire app at once. Pick one feature, make it compile, add a compatibility export if needed, then move to the next feature.

Rule	How to apply it
Move by feature, not by file type	Start with a feature such as events-permissions. Move its pages, hooks, components, and lib helpers together.
Keep imports stable during migration	Create feature index.ts exports and update imports in small batches.
Keep shared small	Only put primitives and generic utilities in shared. If code mentions invoices, attendance, events, child, staff, media, or nursery, it belongs to a feature.
Make pages thin	A page should load route params, call feature hooks, and compose components. Business decisions go into hooks/api/lib.
Centralize API contracts	Supabase calls and edge function calls live in feature/api. Return typed view models to components.
Generate DB types	Move database.ts to generated.types.ts and regenerate after migrations. This removes stale table/type drift.
Protect boundaries	Features may import shared and backend. Features should not deep-import each other; use public feature APIs only.
Test after each slice	Run typecheck/lint after each migrated feature. Add route smoke tests for role pages.

Recommended Migration Order

Wave	Features	Why first
1	auth-access, app router, layouts, backend/supabase generated types	These unblock type safety and reduce routing/layout breakage.
2	events-permissions, invoices-payments, attendance, staff-onboarding, child-enrollment	These are high-change core workflows with scattered files.
3	children-profiles, admissions, staff-hr, payroll, health-safety	Operational features depend on stable core and generated DB types.
4	media, daily-reports, milestones, courses, classes, surveys	Content and learning flows become easier once feature boundaries are normal.
5	AI/help, notifications, PWA/i18n/theme, ops	Cross-cutting platform features can be cleaned after domain slices are clear.

Feature Slice Summary
